

Cooperation With Wartime Plans Pledged

Action Taken At MFL Convention This Morning

Cooperating with President Roosevelt's wartime policies was pledged by Reuben T. Wood, of Springfield, president of the Missouri State Federation of Labor, during this morning's session of the second day of the state convention being held in Sedalia.

Wood also explained several of the points of organization for civilian defense at the meeting, held in the circuit court room of the Pettis county court house. Other speakers included Frank J. Murphy, Kansas City, secretary of the state federation; Frank Leahy, St. Louis, a member of the Workmen's Compensation Commission, and Arnold Griffith, commissioner of consolidation, the United States Department of Labor.

Election Wednesday

A motion was presented and passed that the election of state officers for the ensuing term be held at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, the final day of the conference. Special meetings of the labor relations, boycotts, legislative, war industries and labor laws and several other committees were held after adjournment of the morning session today and early this afternoon.

At this afternoon's meeting, which convened at 2 o'clock, several resolutions are being submitted to the delegates for action.

Important Meeting

The Sedalia convention has been described by labor officials as the "most important gathering of union representatives in the history of the Missouri Federation of Labor, since it is meeting under economic and social conditions which deeply affect the life of the entire working population, and which challenge the very existence of America and the security of the political institutions upon which the democracy and freedom of the United States are built."

The Sedalia state federation convention will be a memorable one — the most important gathering the federation has ever held, officials state.

Dan Nee Speaks
The importance of labor backing in the purchase of United States War bonds and stamps was the subject of a talk by Dan M. Nee, Missouri's collector of internal revenue, before the convention Monday afternoon.

Nee was principal speaker during the afternoon session of the opening day.
All of the new committees for the year were appointed at Monday afternoon's convocation, presided over by veteran president Reuben T. Wood, former congressman.

One Killed, Two Are Injured

Mrs. Robert Shupp of Columbia, was instantly killed and her husband and Everett Allee of Syracuse were painfully injured Saturday afternoon in an automobile accident on highway 54, ten miles east of Eldorado Springs.

The men had been employed at Camp Crowder at Neosho. Having finished their work they started home in Allee's car. They had been driving through timber, and coming out into the open the wind was so strong it caused the car to swerve, striking loose gravel, and then turn over. The auto struck a tree, and Mrs. Shupp was killed instantly.

Allee and Shupp were treated at doctors offices in Eldorado Springs for numerous cuts and bruises. The body of Mrs. Shupp was taken to Columbia, accompanied by Shupp. Allee was brought to the home of a friend in Tipton, and is confined to his bed, suffering from nervous shock. The car was badly damaged.

The gas rationing may not be without its blessings. For one thing, it'll cut down the visiting among relatives, and if they don't see one another so often, that will reduce the number of family squabbles, and first thing you know folks may find they can get along, even with relatives.

Credit Regulation Meeting Tonight

All credit grantors of Sedalia and surrounding trade territory, are reminded of the meeting tonight (Tuesday, May 19) at 8:00 o'clock in the assembly room of the Pettis county court house.

The Federal Reserve District Bank located in St. Louis is sending its official representative, who will explain in detail the new credit regulations which went into effect May 6, and answer questions pertaining to same. It is mandatory upon retailers, with violators subject to heavy penalties, that these new regulations be enforced and it behooves all business people to take advantage of this opportunity to hear an official discussion of the matter.

The Sedalia Retail Credit Association which is sponsoring the meeting has received notice from several surrounding towns which are sending delegates of their business people to the meeting.

Red Armies Pound Nazis Into Retreat

Soviet Tanks Follow Horsemen; Planes Fly Above

By ROGER D. GREENE
Associated Press War Editor

Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's Red armies were reported hammering the Germans into retreat in the eight-day-old battle of Kharkov today, advancing between 30 and 40 miles on a 60-mile front, crushing tank-led counter attacks and wiping out Nazi parachute troops.

Front line dispatches said Russian cavalrymen, charging wildly across a pontoon bridge under an umbrella of warplanes, had captured "a large inhabited locality" in a further advance on the big Ukraine steel city.

Soviet tanks followed the horsemen, while Red warplanes shot down 17 German aircraft which vainly attempted to break up the assault.

The unidentified locality may have been Belgorod, about 25 miles north of Kharkov, or Zmiev, 12 miles south of Kharkov. The capture of either point would create a serious flanking threat to the Germans.

London military quarters said the Russian offensive, which began with a 35-mile breach through the German lines, was now sweeping forward at varying depths on a 120-mile line.

Breaking Enemy Resistance

Soviet dispatches declared the Russian shock troops were "breaking enemy resistance" and said the Germans were already showing signs of strain as wave after wave of reserves failed to stem the advance of Timoshenko's men. More than 2,700 Germans were reported killed or wounded, in addition to 12,000 previously reported.

A British military commentator said the big drive was having a considerable effect on German offensive plans, amid indications that Nazi assault troops resting in other areas were being diverted.

He identified a small telephone chair, held up by Assistant County Prosecutor John V. Hill, as the

Considering Creation Of Food Group

May Apportion Output To Meet Armed Force Need

WASHINGTON, May 19—(AP)—Creation of a war food administrative body within the near future was predicted today by responsible government officials.

Whether the agency would be an independent group or a part of the agriculture department, the War Production Board or some other department, remained to be decided.

One plan tentatively advanced called for the appointment of Donald M. Nelson, WPB chairman, of a committee headed by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard which would be responsible for stimulating agricultural output and apportioning it to meet the growing needs of the army and navy as well as United Nations.

Armed Force Quota
It was estimated the armed forces and lend-lease would require 20 to 25 per cent of next year's food production.

With the armed forces having first call, it was said lend-lease supplies would be allocated both as to food and as to countries, and supplies available for domestic consumption would be certified to the office of price administration for allocation.

The proposed Wickard committee, it was understood, would be a policy-making body which leave the actual handling of food supply problems to the existing agencies best suited to handle them—mainly in the agriculture department.

U. S. Navy Will Show The Axis Real Fighters

First Products Of New Naval Air Training

By GAYLE TALBOT

WASHINGTON, May 19—(AP)—In the not too distant future, the United States Navy will start turning loose against the axis powers the toughest, roughest, most physically accomplished set of fighting pilots that ever kicked a plane about the sky.

They will be the first products of Lieutenant-Commander Tom Hamilton's new naval aviation physical training program, the first commandos of the air. Their entry into the world conflict will herald a revolutionary change in pilot training and serve notice on the axis powers that this nation has decided to fight on the basis of no holds barred.

This new super-airfighter, when he has completed his 12 months of training, will know—among many other things—about all there is to know about "hand-to-hand" fighting. That is only a refined way of describing back-alley fighting.

Will Keep Afloat
He will be able, in case his plane is disabled and he lands in the water, to keep afloat for four or five hours or to swim four or five miles in full equipment. That is the minimum prescribed by Commander Hamilton.

From long hours of boxing he will know how to absorb punishment and how to throw his "Sunday punch." He will have a highly developed feeling for teamwork and aggression, derived from football, basketball and soccer. From actual experience he will know how to "live off the ground," how to survive for an indefinite period in wilderness or desert and to return eventually to his unit.

Still A Gentleman

He still will be a gentleman, Commander Hamilton hastens to add. The navy is not lowering its standard in that respect, and mothers need not fear that their sons will be demoralized by this new training it has been found necessary to install. But he will be a hard-bitten gentleman, extremely dangerous to the enemy and with the greatest chance of survival under all conditions that any fighting man could have.

"Every flier who is able to save himself by his own efforts and return to the fight represents a saving of $12,000—the cost of his training," said Commander Hamilton, realistically.

Doolittle Is Leader Of Tokyo Raid

Little Trouble Found In Reaching Objectives

WASHINGTON, May 19—(AP)—Brigadier General James H. Doolittle was revealed today as the leader of the American air raid on the Japanese a few weeks ago.

This was disclosed when the flier, noted also for his peace-time speed exploits, received from President Roosevelt in person today a congressional medal of honor.

In a statement released at the White House, Doolittle described the historic mission.

He said that little trouble was experienced in reaching objectives or from Japanese planes.

One plane's target, Doolittle asserted, was the navy yard south of Tokyo where "one salvo made a direct hit on a new cruiser or battleship under construction" and "left it in flames."

One bombardier, the General said "strewn incendiary bombs along a quarter of a mile of aircraft factory near Nogoya."

Doolittle said the squadron of American planes came in just over the house-tops, and dropped bombs from 1,500 feet. The low level flying, he said, made it difficult to observe the results of the bombs.

Bombs Reached Targets

"It appeared to us," the flying general declared, "that practically every bomb reached the target for which it was intended. We would like to have tarried and watched the later developments of fire and explosion, but even so we were fortunate to receive a fairly detailed report from the excited Japanese radio broadcasts. It took them several hours to calm down to deception and accusation."

Saw A Ball Game

Doolittle said part of his party observed a ball game in progress at one point and players and spectators did not start to run for cover until just as the field passed from view.

The identity of the leader of the air raid had remained a closely guarded secret. Just before pinning the congressional medal of honor on Doolittle's breast, Mr. Roosevelt remarked with a grin to reporters that not even a columnist had guessed it.

Besides General George R. Marshall, chief of staff of the Army, Lieutenant General H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air service, and Mrs. Roosevelt, no one knew about the decoration until a few moments previous. And Mr. Roosevelt said he thought it would be quite a surprise to General Doolittle. Marshall and Arnold were on hand for the ceremony, as was Mrs. Doolittle, who was flown here from Los Angeles.

There was not the slightest hint

Convoy Outfoxed Axis Submarines In The 2,300 Mile Voyage Across Water

By RICE YAHNER

A.E.F. HEADQUARTERS, Northern Ireland, May 19—(AP)—Tens of thousands of fresh United States soldiers, newly landed with their own tanks and artillery from a convoy almost as large as the greatest of 1918, powerfully reinforced earlier contingents in advanced training at Ulster bases today.

Equipped with millions of dollars' worth of battle tools, they arrived amid public enthusiasm in Britain for opening an allied front against Germany in western Europe.

"This is the finest I've ever seen," commented a veteran officer who witnessed the unloading.

Many among the sturdy youths are from middle western and north central states. Some already have served in the Pacific. Fit and eager, they make up the most formidable of the American forces landed here since the first arrived in January.

Outfoxed Submarines

The convoy outfoxed axis submarines on the 2,400-mile voyage, its escort delivering thunderous depth charge attacks and its gun crews alert for aerial onslaughts that never came. Observers expressed belief that at least one submarine could not have escaped the depth charges.

Facing its most important convoy job in more than five months of war, the U. S. Navy kept intact its record of never having lost a troopship. British warcraft assisted.

From the transport—among them converted liners and cruise ships—the debarkation was smooth and swift.

"War Is Better"

A lieutenant colonel who served in the infantry in the World War commented:

"The last time I came over on an old cattle boat. This time it was a liner. The war is getting better."

Food awaited the men at a wharf shed—stewed meat, vegetables, pork and beans, slices of luncheon meat, pickles, jam, bread, pears, apricots and coffee.

Private Marvin O'Neal, who said he was "an Irishman from South Dakota"—the town of Philip, was the first enlisted man of the contingent to step ashore. With O'Neal was his commanding officer, Capt. Junior Miller of Rapid City, S. D.

Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle, Jr., commander of the A.E.F. here, personally greeted Private Van Jernigan of New Albany, Miss., in passing one of the piers.

Efficient Unloading

Unloading, screened by anti-aircraft guns against possible discovery by German air scouts, continued by day and by night. The business of emptying transports and turning them around for the return trip of new loads of men and materiel was pushed to a peak of efficiency.

Huge field guns were hoisted out of holds and rolled away. Ammunition cases were shifted to trucks and trains almost as quickly as the troops themselves.

Tanks were started and moved off under their own power toward interior bases.

They were in the hands of expert, non-commissioned officers and armored force specialists and hardly an order was necessary.

General Hartle and Lieut. Gen. H. E. Franklin, commander of British troops in Northern Ireland, inspected training centers. They spent the most time at demonstrations of attack by one unit and range firing of rifles, machine-guns and mortars by men of another unit under Jack Althouse of Waterloo, Ia.

When the first alleged "oil shortage" was hulla-ballooed in the east some months ago, the president of the Association of American Railroads said that, in his opinion, the lines could muster sufficient tank cars to carry 200,000 barrels of petroleum and petroleum products a day to the east coast. A storm of abuse at once descended upon him. The prophets of doom, including some important government officials, said that the railroads couldn't come anywhere near that goal, and that they couldn't carry enough oil to meet even a small part of the need.

Now the actual facts have been published. And they show that the president of the association was outlandishly modest in his estimates. For the railroads haven't been hauling 200,000 barrels of oil a day to the east coast. Instead, they have been hauling 600,000 barrels a day—which is three times as much as they at first thought they could handle. And that amounts to 45 per cent of all the oil consumed along the Atlantic seaboard.

Those who are conversant with the history of the American railroad industry won't be particularly astonished by their achievement, spectacular as it is. For the railroads, time and again, have done what their critics said was impossible. Right now they are carrying a larger volume of traffic than they are carrying last year—and they are carrying it without delay, waste, confusion or congestion. There's no transportation bottleneck. No industry is doing a bigger or better job on behalf of the war effort.

If the railroads are permitted to buy the new cars and locomotives they will need as demand for transportation further increases, they will continue to break all records.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round
By DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—John L. Lewis has set the stage for his long expected blow-up with Phil Murray and the CIO.

That's the real purpose behind the special United Mine Worker Policy committee meeting next Monday. Lewis' announcement said the pow-wow would consider vacation and other war problems affecting the union. But that was only window dressing.

Lewis secretly has far more important business up his sleeve. He's bent on venting his fury on Murray and the CIO.

Inside word is that charges of disruption, disloyalty, etc., will be placed against Murray before the policy committee—which is made up of overwhelmingly of hand-picked Lewis henchmen. Also that a long list of complaints will be made against the CIO.

Purpose of the two moves will be to lay the foundation for ousting Murray as UMW vice-president and for withdrawing the UMW from the CIO.

Murray Supporters
Murray plans to attend the meeting. So does Van A. Bittner, head of UMW District 17, and Pat Fagin, head of UMW District 5, both staunch Murray friends.

Bittner has been in Lewis' bad books since the West Virginian refused to knuckle down and go along with Lewis when he bolted to Wendell Willkie. Several months ago, at a UMW Executive Board meeting, Lewis instigated an investigation of Bittner by a hand-picked committee. Nothing more has been heard of this maneuver, but it is expected to pop up again at the Monday conference.

Bittner and Fagin are tough fighters and veterans of many union wars. With any kind of a chance, they'll give Lewis plenty of battle for his money.

Divided Counsel
But the big question is what

Side Glances

"What can be the matter with me? The town's leading citizen falls down and I find myself fighting an irresistible impulse to laugh!"

kind of a chance Murray and his backers will have.

To begin with, the policy committee is stacked overwhelmingly against them. Most of the members owe their good-paying jobs to Lewis and as he has long demonstrated, he is absolutely ruthless with those beholden to him who don't do his bidding.

Secondly, there is a division of views within the Murray camp on the course he should pursue.

Some are advising that he go before the committee with a blasting denunciation of Lewis and then resign. Others are urging that he denounce Lewis, but stick it out and defy him.

These advisers contend that for Murray to resign would be playing squarely into Lewis' hands; enable him to make the claim that Murray didn't dare face a showdown. On the other hand, by meeting Lewis head on, it is argued, Murray would force Lewis to carry the fight to the UMW rank and file, to whom the miner chief would have to justify his isolationism, his attacks on Roosevelt, and his recent attempts to raid other unions.

What Murray will do is his secret. But if Lewis starts anything, the fur will fly hot and furious.

NOTE: Government authorities view the disturbed internal UMW situation with concern. They fear that if the fight goes to the rank and file, which is tough, independent and battle scarred, the battling may seriously retard coal production. Authorities are 100 per cent behind Murray and if he needs any help he'll get all he asks for—and then some.

NYA-CCC Consolidation

The long considered consolidation of the National Youth Administration and the CCC is about to take place.

Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt has approved the plan and an executive order has been prepared for the president's signature. Roosevelt has been in favor of the consolidation for a long time.

Likely head of the combined agency is Aubrey Williams, able and popular NYA director.

A veteran administrationite and one of the most efficient executives in Washington, Williams has powerful backing for the job on Capitol Hill from both Republicans and Democrats. One of the remarkable things about Williams is that although he is a staunch New Dealer, some of his strongest boosters are old-line Republicans.

NOTE: In the past 12 months, NYA has trained more than 400,000 skilled workers for war plants. Authorities rate NYA as the most effective industrial training agency in the government.

Linguists

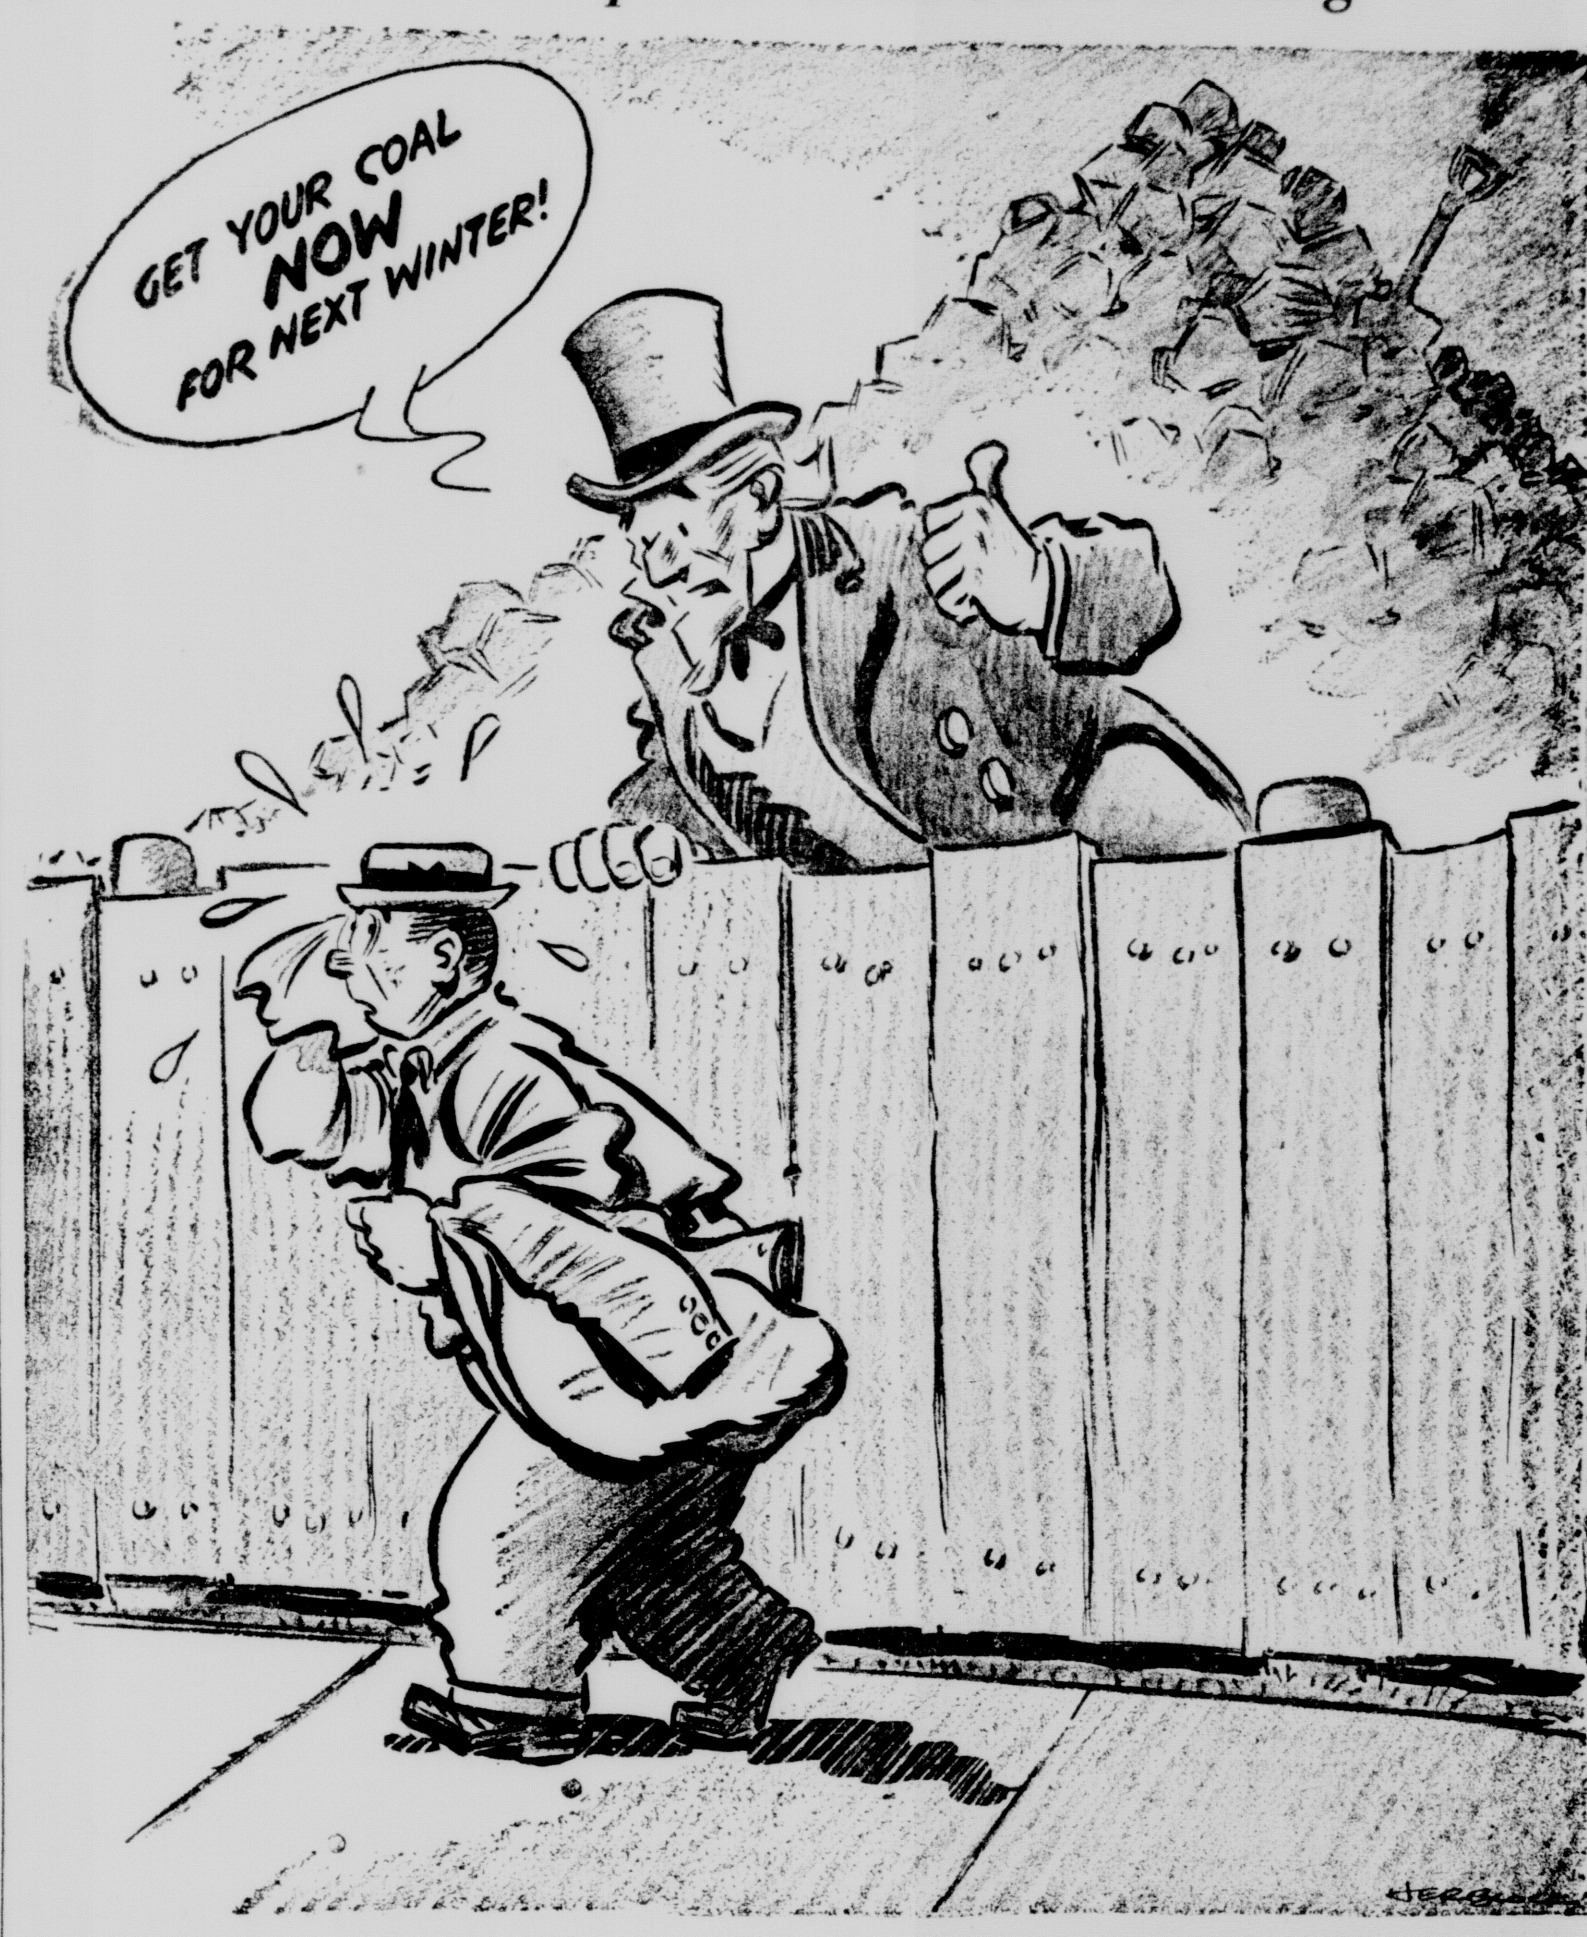

One thing that impressed Peruvian President Manuel Prado during his visit to the Capitol was the linguistic talent of the legislators.

Twenty-seven House members addressed the Peruvian chief in Spanish when they filed by to shake his hand. One member who proved himself especially adept was Rep. Richard M. Kleberg of Texas.

Prado also showed himself an able linguist. In addition to speaking English fluently, he replied easily in French when Rep. Aime J. Forand of Rhode Island addressed him in that tongue.

Later, the Peruvian grinningly told House leaders: "Had I known there were so many representatives who would have understood, I would have delivered my speech in Spanish."

THE STORY—After six years as branch manager for an American chemical firm on a Dutch West Indian island, Bill Talcott is leaving under a cloud of suspicion. An auditor who has come down with Halsey, his successor, accuses him of a serious shortage in his accounts. Of Halsey's other ship companions, June Paterson, beautiful cousin of Bill's college roommate, thinks Bill is a sturdy hero, while the other, a man named MacDowell, turns out to be a detective. Halsey and June take a walk in the evening, and are menaced by island natives. Bill rescues them, is accused by June of staging the scene to impress her. MacDowell menaces Bill with a gun.

MYSTERY SHIP

CHAPTER VI

A HUSH came upon the terrace; a void of silence as if every living thing on the island could see and recognize the danger in that vicious snub-nosed pistol.

"Put down the gun."

It was Bill Talcott who said it. His voice, too, was unreal. Calm, with the deep reverence of a drum beat. It shattered the momentary hypnosis, whipped frayed nerves. Halsey made a half turn with fists clenched, and the girl cried out, "Don't!"

MacDowell's glaring eyes sought Halsey. "He tried to get away from me," MacDowell snarled. "With his tricks of blowin' whistles an' havin' this dame scream so's to catch me off my guard. He clipped me on the jaw and knocked me cold!"

Talcott said, "Once you pull that trigger, nothing can save you. They'll be on us like hornets. Sebastian will be with them. He won't try to stop them this time. If you do injure me, they will tear you to pieces. They won't stop. Miss Paterson's disregard of my order has already aroused them. The slightest violence will upset the balance."

"For God's sake, MacDowell!" Halsey cried hoarsely. "Can't you tell when a man is speaking the truth? Your cap pistol wouldn't amount to peanuts! Put it away!"

The detective hesitated with ill-disguised anger. "Why'd he clip me?" he demanded. "Why'd he wait until my head was turned? You mean to say that whistle an' her scream wasn't no setup?"

June Paterson trembled. "Whatever Mr. Talcott may have done, the scream was entirely my own idea. Please, I—I—" She became suddenly limp and would have fallen had not Halsey's arm supported her.

WITHOUT too much grace.

MacDowell stood aside to let them through. Indecision and bewilderment struggled with anger in his expression. He knew what he would do. Put Talcott in irons and palaver afterward. Fundamentally an uncomplex individual, Mr. MacDowell's theory was to locate the source of trouble and put it out of business. But he didn't know what was out there; his mustache twitched nervously as he peered into the darkness before closing the door. Black Sam brought restoratives, administered them with the detached calm of a physician, waited until Miss Paterson showed signs of revival, vanished at a nod from Bill Talcott.

"That guy makes me nervous," MacDowell muttered. "He don't stay in one place long enough to—" His eyes hardened. "What was all the screamin' an' whistle blowin' about?"

So June Paterson told him. Of discovering the natives in the dark, their menacing attitude, Halsey's courage, the arrival of Sebastian, and later of Talcott. When she was finished, Halsey abruptly cut off a cross-examination.

"Miss Paterson has had sufficient excitement for one night," Halsey said. "My dear, why don't you go to bed?" In the morning it will all seem like a very bad and distant dream."

Talcott's eyes were on her, cold and unapproving. The man seemed made of ice and concrete; unlike the others, no slightest trace of perspiration showed in his face. No emotion showed there either; beyond the faint flash of his eyes he was stone.

She put her hand in Halsey's and arose from the couch. "Good night, dear," she said softly and, lifting her face, kissed him on the lips.

That brought a reaction from Talcott. Dull red mounted from his collar to the rims of his eyes. He seemed as if about to speak, and then, turning, he strode from the house.

SHE awoke from troubled sleep with a startled sense of reality, of emergence from a hazy, swift-moving world into one that was sharply focused and sinister. It was still night; unobstructed stars gleamed balefully through her unglazed window. Dawn, she knew, was not far off; soon, with the swiftness of a drawing shutter, the sun would beat mercilessly down. Already the night's welcome coolness had passed; there had been rain, for a square of floor by the window was dark with wetness.

She lay a moment beneath her netting, trying to fathom what had awakened her. And then, beyond the slope on the sea side, she heard voices. Detached, unheeded, drifting shouts. Drawing a robe about her slim figure she crossed to watch a panorama of moving light fingers.

There were two shafts. One threw into bold relief figures on the beach. Instantly she recognized Sebastian, and beside him the huge native Tomas. They were watching the white path thrown by the powerful flashlight in Sebastian's hand to where the outlined gray hull of a schooner was perilously close to the shore.

"You want to get wrecked, hey?" Sebastian's yell floated up. From the schooner a crisp, harsh voice answered, "Light your pier. We want to land!"

"No light the pier!" Sebastian's yell increased in volume. "Me know you! We got plenty troubles now. You stay away!"

The schooner swung slowly about, wallowing in the trough of waves. An end to stillness, the muffled boom of her engines echoed and she swung in a wide circle, heading west to the landing place. Sebastian's enraged cries followed them, and the light in his hand bobbed crazily with his running.

A nice hospitable place this is, June Paterson thought. If the schooner could land it would afford her the opportunity of escape. She was tired, sick and thoroughly frightened now. There was evil here. No matter what Bill Talcott had once been, he had become something sinister and strange. He was someone she did not know, perhaps had never known. Whatever his deadly game with Halsey, Struthers and MacDowell, he could have it all to himself. She had been a fool to come here.

As quickly as it came, the resolve to pack and escape crystallized in her brain. She was drawing away from a movement outside the window held her. A cloying, nameless fear caught at her throat, robbed her of the power of movement. So near she could touch him, a shadowy figure loomed and began a slow, ambling walk toward the pier.

Someone had been there, watching as she watched the tabular in the water. Had the presence of the schooner prevented an entrance to her room?

The figure was lost in gloom when, from the sea in the direction of the pier, came the heavy boom of a shot.

Once it sounded. And then from the depths of darkness beyond her window arose a wild, angry bellow followed by the pounding beat of shoes on the path.

Secure Horses To Distribute Papers

ST. LOUIS, May 19—(AP)—It was a strange sight to passersby—50 bales of hay and many bags of feed piled high in front of the garage where the St. Louis Globe Democrat houses its huge fleet of trucks. But there was no mistake. Inside were 10 horses, purchased today to augment the motorized delivery of the Globe-Democrat, a morning paper, the horses will be used for downtown deliveries beginning about June 1.

Name Hawaii Post For U. S. Airmen

George A. Whiteman Of Sedalia, One Of Two Honored

A new Veterans of Foreign Wars post was recently organized and installed in Hawaii, and was named after the United States Airmen who lost their lives at Pearl Harbor, December 7—Lieut. George Whiteman and Lieut. Hans C. Christensen. It will be known as the Christensen-Whiteman post.

A dedicatory ceremony, installing Oahu's newest V. F. W. post, was held at Bellows field recently under the auspices of the Department of Hawaii and V. F. W. Post No. 94, Honolulu. The new post boasts a membership of 700 members.

The ceremony was held at the place where Lieutenant Whiteman was shot down in flames in making an attempt to get into the air from his base, and at the place where Lieutenant Christensen met his death while running to his plane on the flying field. At these places will be placed a bronze plaque.

Officers In Charge
Services were conducted by Earl J. Stephenson of Kaneohe, senior vice department commander. Chaplain Ernest J. Blackford of Bellows Field read the V. F. W. prayer.

Fifteen Honolulu women representing units in Honolulu, Kailua and Kaneohe placed floral wreaths symbolizing fortitude, courage, and devotion on the fenced area. Commander Stephenson was shown in a picture appearing in the Honolulu Star-Bulletin placing a wreath on the area where Lieut. Whiteman lost his life.

Other department officials present were: Leslie R. Rodericks, commander of Post No. 94; Melville Holmes, Louis Isek, Capt. Edmund Short, Lieut. John Roeh, Lieut. George Gorgol, Warrant Officer Samuel Lea, Warrant Officer Fred Pettit, and newly elected Post Commander John T. Reilly, civil service employee at Bellows field.

Women Represented
Among the Honolulu posts represented were the auxiliaries of Post 1540, John Rodgers Ship 2895, women's auxiliary of the Fleet Reserve and the auxiliary of the Spanish-American War Veterans.

Mrs. John T. Reilly represented the Returned Soldiers Association of New Zealand.

Paper Sent By Sedalians

The newspaper in which appeared the account of the dedicatory ceremonies of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post was received in Sedalia by E. H. McLaughlin, 1301 West Third street, from his son, George McLaughlin, who is stationed in Hawaii.

Lieut. Whiteman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Whiteman, 623 West Twenty-fourth street. Last week they received the Posthumous Silver Star at ceremonies at Jefferson Barracks.

Considering Creation Of Food Group

would have representation on the committee, with membership likely to include the army, navy, office of lend-lease administration, board of economic warfare, office of price administration, WPB, and possibly office of defense transportation.

Under such a tentative setup the agriculture department would carry on the food-for-freedom drive which it now has under way, and would control prices through its agricultural marketing administration and commodity credit corporation, so as to insure maximum output at a fair return to growers and canners; WPB would have responsibility for the supply of farm machinery, fertilizers and process equipment and now would allot exports among the United States.

The army, meanwhile, was said by government officials to be rushing dehydrated foods to save shipping space.

Open House At Jefferson School Wednesday Night

Jefferson school will have open house from 7:30 until 9:15 o'clock Wednesday night. Special work done by the pupils will be on display.

Refreshments will be served.

Cut Off Some Commodities

JEFFERSON CITY, May 19—(P)—Surplus food commodities will be cut off from 17,000 Missouri families by July 1, the state supervisor of the agricultural marketing administration said yesterday.

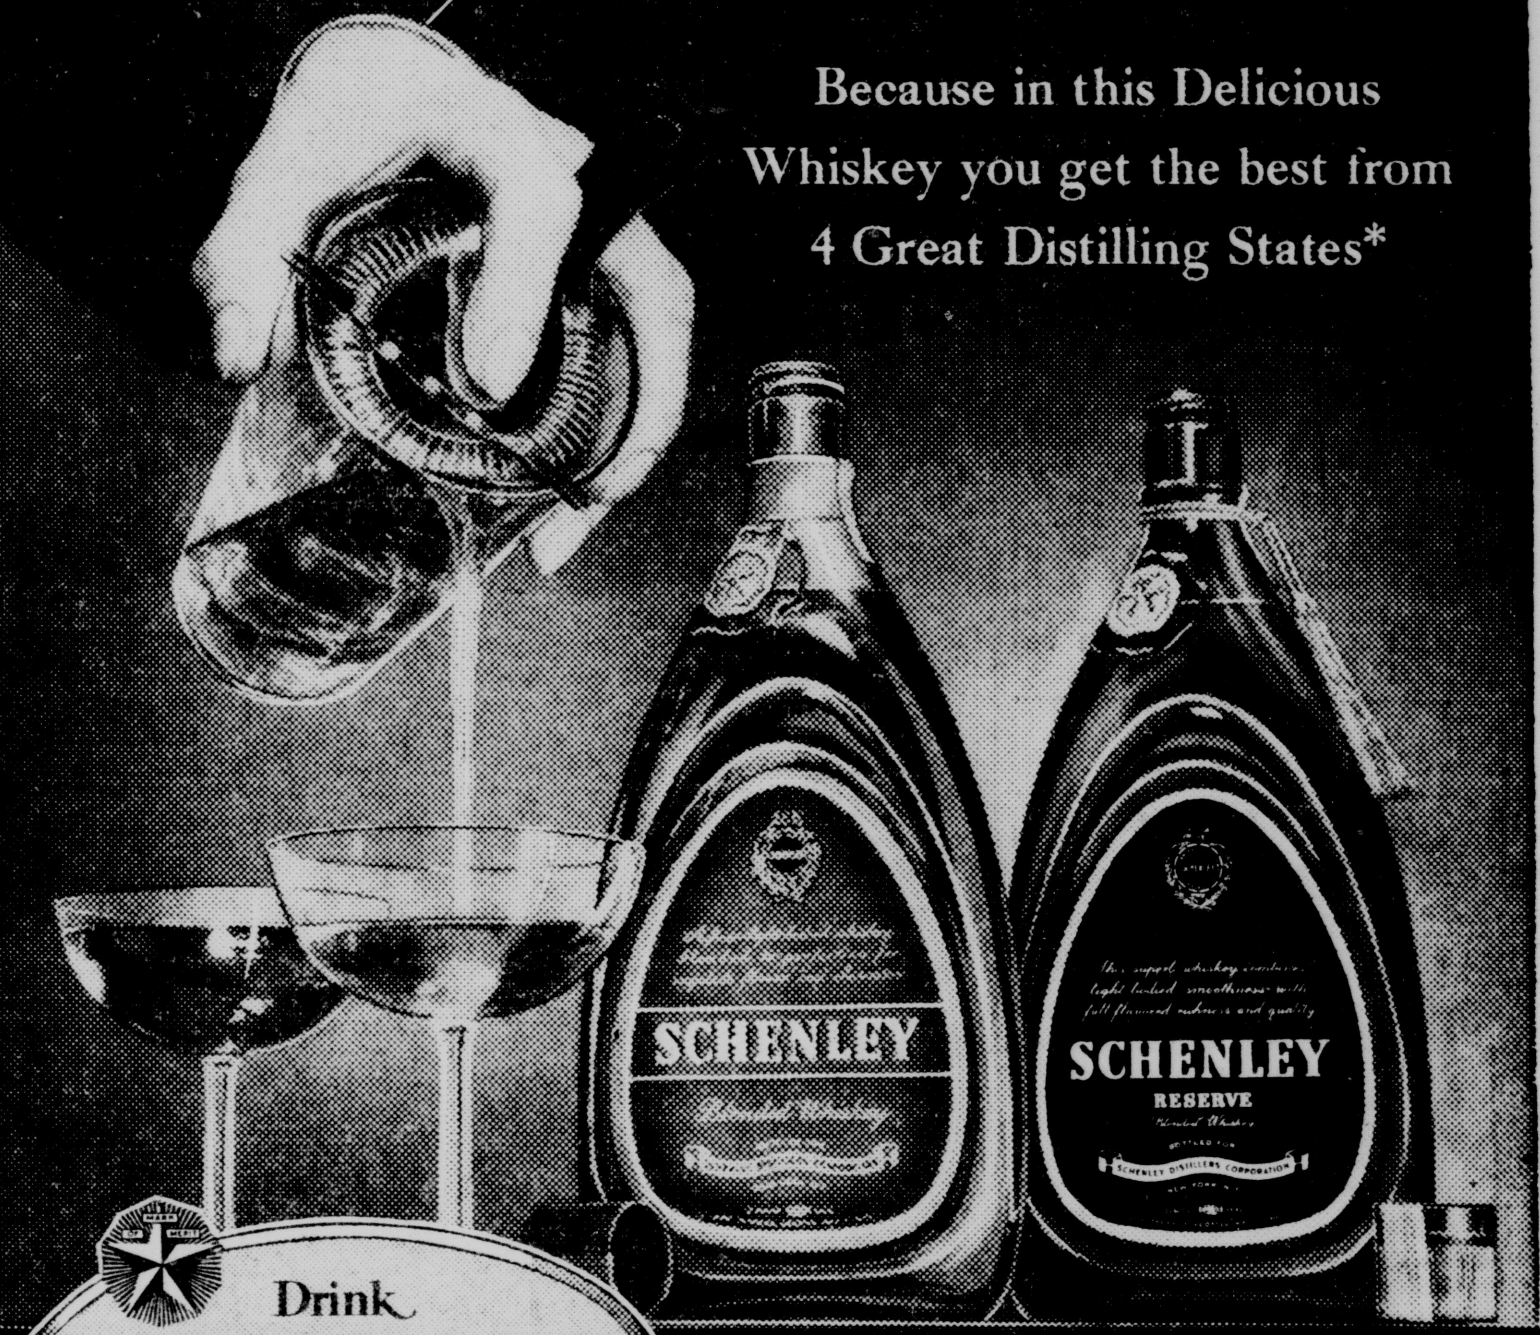

The supervisor, Joel J. Berrall, said those cut off the commodity rolls will be "WPA cases and cases receiving no assistance from the state other than commodities."

The reason for their elimination he said, is that the state social security commission does not have enough administrative funds to continue the periodic investigations of recipients' eligibility which the AMA requires.

Commodities will continue to be distributed, Berrall said, for the school lunch programs and to those families receiving them as supplements to old age pensions, direct relief grants of aid to dependent children payments. Those cases must be examined by the commission as part of its state aid program.

Jr. Legion Loses 2 to 3 To Stover

Goff And Fey Are In Pitcher's Battle; Each Scores Run

The Junior American Legion baseball team lost another game Sunday to Stover, 3 to 2, in a hotly contested affair played on the Stover diamond.

Goff pitched a six hit game but two errors proved very costly to the youngsters from Sedalia. The game, itself, was more a pitcher's battle between Goff and Fey of Stover, than anything else.

Both moundmen were bearing down all the way. Of the few hits made each pitcher did his part. Goff got one hit off Fey while Fey nipped Goff for two hits. Each pitcher made one run.

Connie Mac Hopeful For The Indians

States They Are Definitely Pennant Contenders

By JUDSON BAILEY Associated Press Sports Writer

Old Connie Mack spoke at a dinner in Cleveland last night and, nice fellow that he is, asserted that the Indians are definite pennant contenders in the American league.

Mr. McGillicuddy may have been speaking either from his heart or from his extraordinary fund of baseball vision, but in either case the timing of his remarks was faultless because the Tribe has crept into a virtual tie with the New York Yankees for first place in the American league.

There is no question that 24-year-old Lou Boudreau has accomplished amazing things at Cleveland. The Tribe won 13 in a row at the end of April and when it went into a tailspin and lost half a dozen straight, he jolted it back to an upward plane that has brought seven triumphs in the last eight games.

Indians Raise Percentage
Yesterday the Indians laylaid the Philadelphia Athletics with six hit pitching by Chubby Dean and Joe Heving and a 14-hit attack led by Ken Keltner and Chris Hockett. The result was a 7-4 victory that boosted the Tribe within 13 percentage points of the Yanks.

Actually the two clubs are even in games won and lost reckoning, but the Tribe has played two more than New York.

The Yankees were idle at St. Louis yesterday for the eighth time in 12 days and are not scheduled today. This will give the Indians an opportunity to move half a game ahead of the champions by winning today but they would still be left two percentage points behind New York because they have lost an extra contest.

Dahlgren To Cubs
The Browns took advantage of their day off to return Babe Dahlgren, the itinerant infidel, to the Chicago Cubs on the ground that there had been a misunderstanding as to what would happen if Dahlgren went into military service before the end of the season.

Philadelphia's defeat at Cleveland plunged the A's into the American league basement as the Chicago White Sox captured their seventh straight victory 7-5 at the expense of the Washington Senators. Wally Moses was the big gun in Chicago's attack.

The surge of the Sox raised them to a tie with the Senators for sixth place as John Rigney, Chicago's pitching mainstay, passed from civilian life into the hands of the navy at the Great Lakes training station.

Boston Downs Detroit
In the day's other American league contest the Boston Red Sox downed the Detroit Tigers 4-2 with Jimmy Foxx providing the winning margin on a two-run homer in the sixth inning.

The Brooklyn Dodgers continued to burn up the National league running their latest winning streak to seven games and increasing their first place margin also to seven, by smothering the Chicago Cubs 4-1. The veteran, Johnny Allen, pitched five hit ball.

The St. Louis Cardinals shook off their scoring lethargy with a 16-1 triumph over the New York Giants. The Red Birds made 15 hits and bunched five runs in the second inning. Jimmy Brown and Walker Cooper each batted in four runs.

Finding the more modern industry was fading what with priorities and such, McCarty discovered that gas rationing was causing a boom in use of horses and is now doing very well in making harnesses and saddles.
